Address, Hon. George E. Wallace, El Paso.

Address, General W. H. Patterson, Dallas.

Appointment of committees on credentials.

3:30 p. m.—Informal reception by ladies of Waco to visiting ladies at the parlors of Elks' club.

8:00 p. m.—Informal dance for all Elks and ladies at Elks' ball room.

"Hello, Bill," will be the slogan in Waco for the next three days. It is one of the pass words that will get the invaders through the lines into the trenches of pleasure that have been prepared for the guests. The Elks' Army and Navy are expected to take everything that looks good to them and forget that real war ever existed.

Yesterday at local Elks' Navy and Army headquarters at Fort Franklin near Point Postoffice, there was an immense council of war held by the strategists of the Waco division No. 166 and the mighty invading forces, the vanguards of which are already approaching the city in vast numbers, will receive a reception from Waco howitzers that will prove that this city is indeed an impregnable point for successful exhaustive attacks.

Admiral of the Brazos W. W. Seley has commissioned a veritable army of officers who will see to it that the invaders are royally received in their mighty charges on the fortresses that have been erected at all vulnerable points.

Last night battalions began to bombard the outer defenses, and in steel armored trains and in steel armored divisions are met with an augmented force. The rules of the great army and navy of the Elks of Texas require that when a division or a company overcomes the local defenses

GENERAL W. H. PATTERSON OF DALLAS

The plan of warfare for the campaign of the allied Texas Armies and Navies against the Waco fortresses will be directed by General W. H. Patterson of Dallas, first president of the Texas State association B. P. O. Elks, first organizer of the Elks' Army and Navy and chairman of the board of strategy. General Patterson will supervise the campaign on the firing line and is expected to reach Waco today.

Gainesville Man Has Remarkable Escape as Ship Goes Down

Queenstown, May 9.—One of the most remarkable escapes from the Lusitania was that of R. K. Timmis of Gainesville, Tex., who was returning to Queenstown for his yearly visit, accompanied by his friend, S. T. Moodie, also of Gainesville. Both men gave their life belts to steerage women just as the Lusitania sank. Timmis, who is a strong swimmer, remained in the water, clinging to various objects, for nearly three hours. Then he was taken into a boat which he still had the strength to assist in rowing.

The boat began picking up all those showing signs of life, and the first person rescued was the half-conscious steerage woman to whom Timmis had given his life belt.

Moodie sank when the ship went under and although a good swimmer, was not seen again. Moodie was ready to jump when Timmis, who previously had given his belt to a woman, said:

"There is a steerage woman here with a 6-months-old baby."

His life belt, but it seems both he and the woman perished.

Additional List of Lusitania Survivors

New York, May 9.—Following is an additional list of survivors of the Lusitania to those sent out Saturday:

Easton, Mrs. A.; Marshal, Mrs. Fanny; Farquhar, Mrs. J. A.; Roberts, Stanley; Alston, Joseph; McFarquhar, Miss Grace; McDonnell, Miss Kitty; Secchi, Mrs. Herbert; Ehart, Mrs. Betty; Eys, Mrs. C.; Cutchins, Mrs. Stanley; Wolfenden, Mrs. John. Second and third cabin: Scott, Arthur; Scott, Alice; Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Edward and two children; Coleman, Mrs. Susan; Bartley, George; Parkes, Wm. H.; Granahan, Michael; Barrow, D. C.; Crocby, Agnes; Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. H. W.; Wilkes, Kate; Franklin, Joseph and child; Francis, Moses; Janet; Shaikell, Wm.; Benjamin, Miss Queenie; Boy, James; Smith, Geo.; Marsh, Mrs. Woodward; Robert; Thompson, Joseph; Hook, George; Hook, Frank; Ellison, Babajan; Stephens, Thomas O.; Kahraman, Petros; Lee, Bridget; Gallagher, Mrs. Margaret; Glancey, Joseph; Brown, Wm.; Diamandies, Theo.; Simpson, Edward; Dawson, W. Mc.; Gintley, Patrick; Goodwin, Rose; Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Hanley, Peter; Ashman, Henry C.; Matthews, Thomas; Hasketh, Alfred; Rowan, Annie; McSweeney, John; Kilkenny, Della M.; McClintock, Miss; Farrow, Robert.

Unclassified: Oliver, Bartlett.

Cunard Company's List.

The following names of survivors of the Lusitania have been given out at the Cunard line offices here:

First cabin: Adams, Henry, Boston; Crooks, Robert W., Toronto; Hammond, P. S., Toronto; Pirie, Robinson, Hamilton, Ont.; Schwarte, August W., New York; Tiberghen, George, New York; Turner, Scott, New York.

Second cabin: Barker, Mrs. M., New York; Barker, Miss W., New York; Bartlett, Mrs. E. T., Chibberdot, H., Dockworth, Miss E.; Lund, Mr.; McCready, Dr. Ralph, Chicago; Marsh, Miss A.; Murdock, Miss E.; Northena, Uno; Plank, Mrs. H.; Toronto; Pollis, Ed.; Win, M.; Rice or Brice, Mrs. H. B. (a Mrs. H. B. Brice of Syracuse is on the sailing list); Walderman, Miss Lora; Wyath, Miss Martha; Yadster, F.

Another Victim From New York.

London, May 9, 8:20 p. m.—An additional victim of the Lusitania disaster made known this evening is Arthur Dixon of New York.

Temple Woman Awaits News of Husband on Sunken Lusitania

for news and hearing up bravely under the strain, Mrs. T. J. Silva of this city, wife of the Temple cotton buyer who was a passenger to France on the sunken Lusitania, is hoping against hope and refuses to believe that her husband was lost in the wreck. Telegrams exchanged with Cunard line officers and business associates in New York hold out no hope, however, as no tidings of the missing man have been received.

The only chance is that he may have managed to get in one of the boats and been picked up off the coast somewhere. Mr. Silva has been credited in press dispatches as being a resident of Tampa, Fla., and by others as being from Galveston. Both are incorrect, as his home was in Temple where his wife and two babies are tearfully waiting for news. He was originally from Atlanta, Ga., while Mrs. Silva comes from Thomasville, in the same state. They have resided here but a short time.

Japan Cancels Her Military Movements

Tokio, May 9, 8:30 p. m.—The Japanese government tonight announced that the naval and military movements in connection with the Chinese situation had been cancelled.

Negro Is Mobbed at Big Sandy, Texas

Big Sandy, Tex., May 9.—An unknown negro, alleged to have shot and probably fatally wounded J. A. Phillips, car inspector for the Texas & Pacific railroad at Marshall, was taken from the jail here shortly after midnight Sunday and hanged from a tree.

The negro is alleged to have snatched Phillips' purse and shot Phillips when the latter gave chase.

Italy Is Calling Her Troops to the Colors

London, May 9.—The Copenhagen correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company sends the following: "A private message from Berlin states that Italy yesterday called to the colors all infantry classes from 1875 and that many trains loaded with troops are proceeding to the front."

Italian Army 600,000 Strong.

Geneva, Switzerland, May 9, via Paris, 3:30 p. m.—Italian army 600,000 strong; fully equipped and ready for the field, has been concentrated at Verona, a fortified Italian city, 25 miles from the frontier of Austria-Hungary.

Germans Leaving Italy.

Paris, May 9, 9:45 p. m.—A dispatch from Bellinzona, Switzerland, to the Temps today says: "The Germans are fleeing from all parts of Italy. All trains in the direction of the frontier are packed with Teutonic passengers, including merchants and officials." "Special trains have brought 3000 Germans from Rome, Florence and Bologna, en route for Germany. Lugano also is filled with refugees."

"Notice has been given of the suspension from today of the telephone service across the frontier and of the suppression of a great many passenger trains."

"All Germans and Austrian journalists have left Italy."

ACTION OF THE U. S. IS STILL DECIDED: MANY WANT WAR

PRESIDENT WILSON SPENDS MAJOR PORTION OF DAY CONSIDERING THE SITUATION, BUT NO STATEMENT MADE BY WASHINGTON OFFICIALS.

TELEGRAMS BY SCORE ARRIVE

Many Labor Organizations Urge the Adoption of Severe Measures While Others Would Sever All Diplomatic Relations Until Reparation Made. Some Justify Germany's Action.

Washington, May 9.—What action the United States government will take as a result of the sinking of the British liner Lusitania with a loss of more than a hundred American lives tonight is undecided.

President Wilson during the last 24 hours has been studying every aspect of the case from its legal and humanitarian aspects. That he feels deeply distressed over the incident and realizes the people of the United States expect him to express in some pronounced fashion their indignation over it was indicated by the statement issued from the white house last night.

Nothing more was added today to the few significant sentences of this utterance—that the president was "considering very earnestly but very calmly the right course of action to pursue," and that "he knows the people of the country wish and expect him to act with deliberation as well as with firmness." Until all the official reports are received from ambassadors Gerard and Page at Berlin and London, respectively, it is said, no final decision will be taken.

The president spent a quiet day apart from his official family—and for the most part alone. He went to church in the forenoon and took a ride after lunch.

President is Preoccupied.

"Most of the time he seemed preoccupied and talked little to his companions. He sat in his study, it was said, in deep thought, undisturbed for hours. Secretary and Mrs. McAdoo dined with him tonight but it was understood no reference was made to the Lusitania disaster. At the same time Mr. McAdoo had visited the white house since he was operated on a few weeks ago.

When the president went motoring he rode alone on the front seat, revolving in his mind the most important problem of his administration. When he returned to his desk tonight he found the pile of telegrams had increased. They had been coming in scores from all parts of the country. Many urged the adoption of severe measures. Several among them a few from workingmen's organizations, advised a declaration of war as the only way to secure further reparation to American dignity. Others suggested a severance of all diplomatic relations until adequate reparation and apology was made. Still others counseled a peaceful course, and some urged a period of further armistice. A few justified the sinking. Secretary Bryan, who spent the day at home, also received many messages bearing on the situation.

The president plans to go to Philadelphia tomorrow to deliver a speech which observers generally believe will give expression to his own feeling on the Lusitania situation. He is to address a meeting of 4000 naturalized Americans tomorrow. He is expected to deliver the policy he has in mind and will ask their counsel.

German Statement Commented Upon.

The official statement from Berlin, which came by wireless, admitting that a German submarine had sunk the Lusitania, and pointing out that the big liner was "naturally" upon the high seas, was widely commented upon by officials.

On the highest authority it was stated that as early as last September when the complex of the Lusitania, before her departure, called attention to the arrival in American ports of British liners, among them the Adriatic, which was boarded, the question was taken up by the state department. An understanding was reached with Great Britain as to whether the Lusitania was carrying arms and munitions. Field Malone, collector of the port of New York, has been asked to make a statement as to whether the Lusitania carried any armament and has reported that she had no guns aboard.

At first the German ambassador, today returned to the embassy but declared that no expression would be given without instructions from Berlin. He said the German official statement concerning the disaster made comment from the embassy unnecessary.

During the day the German ambassador received an anonymous letter warning him that the embassy would be blown up at 1:30 a. m. tomorrow. He turned it over to the police but regarded it as the work of a crank.

All eyes continued to be focused on the white house where the final decision on the policy to be pursued by the United States is to be made. Only the president's most intimate advisers know of the complexity of the problem before him. It not only concerns the attack on the Lusitania with nearly 200 Americans on board, but also the series of incidents during a period of strained relations with Germany for many weeks.

Disapproved German Complaints.

The president has watched without open comment but with keen interest the "equal" the complaints of the German officials with regard to questions of neutrality and the efforts to array German-American sentiment against the Washington administration as a means of urging an embargo on munitions of war against the allies.

Head of Anti-Saloon League Is at Dallas

REV. WM. J. HERWIG.

Dallas, May 9.—Rev. Wm. J. Herwig, late of Boise, Idaho, reached Dallas Friday night and yesterday assumed his duties as assistant superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of Texas. Mr. Herwig was elected by the executive committee of the league some weeks ago. No announcement of his election was made until he could accept and assume duties.

He comes with a good record as an anti-saloon worker and the league people feel that they are strongly reinforced in his connection with the Texas league. Mr. Herwig was born and raised in Illinois. He was educated in Baldwin university, Berea, Ohio. He has done some pastoral work, but the most of his public life has been in connection with the anti-saloon movement. He has spent twelve years as district and assistant superintendent in Washington and six years as superintendent in Idaho. In Idaho he was the terror of the liquor traffic. It was he that organized and led the campaign that swung Idaho into the dry column. In accepting Mr. Herwig's resignation as superintendent in Idaho, the executive committee passed resolutions expressing deep regret at losing Mr. Herwig and commending him and his work in the most pronounced way.

The resolutions say that the committee accept his resignation "reluctantly with deep personal regret and a sense of personal loss, and appreciation of the work which he has accomplished for Idaho, which has been practically carried out as planned by him. First, the completion of the work of securing county local option, then campaigns by counties until two-thirds of the counties of the state were dry, then legislation strengthening the local option law, then statutory prohibition by the last session of the legislature and the submission of a constitutional amendment to the people in 1916."

"We believe that this success has been due to the fact that Superintendent Herwig has been able to harmonize all the temperance forces of the state and to work successfully in the same field for the unprecedented period of five and a half years."

"We wish to assure Superintendent Herwig that he carries with him the earnest prayers of all the moral forces in the northwest. He has an imperishable place, not only in the record of moral progress in our commonwealth, but also in the hearts of all good citizens. He goes bearing the esteem and enjoying the confidence of all who have been associated with him in the great campaign in Idaho."

Former Mayor of Temple Suffers Paralytic Stroke

Temple, May 9.—While seated at luncheon in a restaurant here last night, former Mayor Fred P. Hamill of Temple, one of the best known citizens of central Texas, was visited by a stroke of paralysis, the second within a year, and was immediately removed to his residence, where treatment was administered. His condition is regarded as being very serious.

Pena Takes Troops to Northern Mexico

San Antonio, Tex., May 9.—A message from Aguas Calientes says:

"A force of 1,500 men in command of General Ricardo Pena left here Friday for the north on ten trains, carrying 800 infantry and about 650 cavalry."

The movement, while not explained here, is presumed to be to reinforce Torreon from an attack reported to have been planned by Gen. Eulalio Gutierrez, formerly provisional president, who with a force of nearly 2,000 men is said to have been marching in the direction of Torreon. Villa claims to have enough troops in the vicinity of Aguas Calientes to hold in check the advance of Obregon's forces. Advice received here in the last few days are to the effect that Obregon was either not prepared to attack Villa or had decided to wait an attack from the conventionalist leader. Villa will not discuss his plans nor give any reason for the present movement of troops."

NOTED AMERICANS LAY DEAD IN MORGUES AT QUEENSTOWN

Body of Charles Frohman, Face Upward in Bare Old Building, Victim of Attack on Lusitania—Survivors Too Dazed to Tell Coherent Story of the Disaster.

MANY NOW ALIVE ARE EXPECTED TO DIE

Some Say One Missile Struck Steamer, Some Contend There Were Two—List of Vessel Rendered Life Boats on One Side Useless—Question Now Is Why Was the Coast Hugged?

Queenstown, May 9.—Twenty-three miles from this port, as the crew files, an irregular smear of floats on a calm sea marks the grave of the Cunard liner Lusitania, first trans-Atlantic liner sunk by a German submarine.

One hundred and forty-nine of 1,200 souls who perished with her lie in improvised morgues in old buildings bordering Queenstown harbor. They either were picked up dead or succumbed after landing.

The 645 survivors here are quartered in hotels, residences and hospitals, some too badly hurt to be moved. Two groups left town Saturday afternoon and evening, clad in makeshift clothing, bound for Dublin by rail and thence by boat to Holy Head. The injuries of some are so serious that additional deaths are expected and nearly all are too dazed to understand fully what has happened.

The survivors do not agree as to whether the submarine fired one or two torpedoes. A few say they saw the periscope, though many attest to tracking the wake of foam as a projectile came toward the vessel. The only points in which all concur is that the torpedo struck the vessel a vital blow amidships, causing her to list almost immediately to the starboard. In this concerning fashion she plowed forward some distance, smashing the lifeboats' davits as she did so and making the launching of boats well-nigh impossible until headway had ceased.

Lifeboats Rendered Useless. How far the Lusitania struggled forward after being struck and how long it was before she disappeared beneath the waves, likewise, are points upon which few passengers agree. The first of these, according to the list to starboard so elevated the lifeboats on the port side as soon to render them useless and it is said only two on the starboard side were launched. The first of these, according to the custom of the sea, was filled with women and children. It struck the water unevenly, capsizing and throwing its sixty occupants into the sea.

The Lusitania even then was making considerable headway and the women and little children were swept to death in spite of the attempts of two stokers to rescue them. These heroic men, according to the passengers, were drowned.

After that several boats were launched successfully, but the steamer's list grew more perilous, the docks slanting to such an angle that it was impossible for all to get to the starboard rail. Many by this time had donned life belts and jumped. Several lifeboats broke adrift unoccupied and the sea became a froth of oars, chairs, debris and human bodies.

Two stokers, seeing a drifting boat, dived overboard, recovered it and pulled in nearly forty persons, mostly women. The Lusitania's crew, meanwhile, adhered to the order to stay put, never leaving the ship, and advised them to remain on deck a while longer. Whether this was due to the fact that these subordinates lost their head or to their conviction that the ship's bulkhead would save her, nevertheless, will be determined, but that such an incident occurred is attested by Ernest Townley, a resident of Surbiton, England, who was returning from a business trip in America.

Survivors Still Dazed. All day yesterday in hotel corridors, halls and reception rooms, survivors sat listlessly, still too dazed to discuss what had occurred. They were dressed in a variety of garments. Some were crying softly; some were trying to force down the tea or other nourishment. In front of the small Cunard liner offices on the waterfront, a crowd and that they have captured several villages in Flanders. Sir John French, the British commander-in-chief, takes issue with this statement and says all German successes in various isolated spots. None of them, however, except by Austria and German, record successes on a great scale. Petrograd does not deny the gains claimed by the Teutons but declares the Russians are fighting back hard at several points and that the attacks of the Teutons while undiminished in vigor are becoming less frequent.

LOSING THEIR HOMES.

The situation at Danbury, where the members of the Hatters' Union are threatened with losing the little homes they have in many cases been a lifetime in getting, is pathetic, reminds the San Antonio Light.

The affairs of 186 workmen are concerned. They are the men whose property was attached in the famous Danbury case of the highest courts before it was finally adjudicated. The courts have ruled that these defendants must pay damages—and unless they do so before May 20 it is promised by the other side that the attachments will be foreclosed.

The labor war of which this is a painful incident was started by the United Hatters of North America, who fought the case with the assistance of the American Federation of Labor. It is claimed by the men who are the principal sufferers from the verdict of $250,000 that was given D. E. Loewe as damages, that the Danbury union not only did not start the boycott, but that they did not even officially sanction it. This is not to say that they claim not to have been in favor of it, but they had nothing to say about it because D. E. Loewe does not sell hats in Connecticut and the boycott was in the states where he does business. It is further averred that not one of the 186 men who may lose their homes ever worked for Mr. Loewe.

Readers of these words will remember that there was a strike in Danbury which spread until it became a national affair. Some of the labor leaders made a legal slip in connection with the Loewe boycott, and Loewe fought back and ultimately won. His attachments when suit was brought were against the real estate of the members of the Danbury union, who were back of the strike that started things.

Some of these union men in Danbury think the American Federation of Labor ought to come to their relief. "They got us into this; they ought to get us out of it," is their argument. It is hardly possible for the United Hatters of North America to take care of the quarter of a million dollar judgment, because it would mean an assessment of $30 on every hatter in the organization, and that is a large sum for a working man. It is claimed, however, that the Federation of Labor could solve the problem by levying an assessment of a few cents apiece on its 2,000,000 members. Mr. Gompers is quoted as saying that the organization has no authority to do this, to which Mr. Loewe replies that it raised $230,000 to defend the Los Angeles dynamiters in 1912.

If the Federation had won its fight against Loewe and had ruined his business, no doubt it would have been hailed as a Federation victory. What adds to the gloom in the minds of the 186 Danbury hatters who stand to lose their all by the verdict is the thought that the great national organization which backed them cannot see its way clear to paying the cost of defeat.

As a matter of abstract justice, it will be admitted by all that if a body of men conspire to ruin another man and he can convince the courts of it, he is entitled to recover damages from whoever he can prove had something to do with it. The supreme court has passed on the merits of the Hatters' case. According to its decision there was a conspiracy and the workmen who belonged to the Danbury union were at the bottom of it and must pay the damages, so far as they can be collected. Back of this no one has the right to go, when the court of last resort has spoken.

But all that is in the abstract. In the concrete, we see a lot of workmen about to lose their homes they have striven for years to build up. Whatever one's sympathies may be regarding the original contention or as to labor difficulties in general, the position of the Danbury workmen is unfortunate and seems deserving of sympathy.

For two years Thackeray did all his writing with one pen, which also served him for writing two novels. Oliver Wendell Holmes used a gold pen for more than thirty years, during which he wrote 12,000,000 words.

CENSORSHIP FOR WACO.

Those who read the very interesting article on this page yesterday by Mrs. Llewellyn Aubrey, dealing with the need of some sort of a censorship of moving picture shows in Waco found much in the article with which they agreed, no doubt. In our estimation, Mrs. Aubrey made out her case for the need of a censorship and we hope the members of the city commission will in the near future act upon the suggestion and appoint a voluntary board of censors who will serve without salary, as is provided for in the charter. Such a method of appointment would serve to remove the board of censors from politics—a very essential consideration—and would enable the board to command the services of a higher type of public servants than if a small salary were paid.

If attendance upon picture shows were restricted to mature adults whose characters and views of the larger problems of life are already formed, there would be little occasion for such censorship, but children are going to the shows by the millions and many pictures are being shown that are very hurtful. For instance, pictures that poke fun at the marital relation, portray the commission of crime, depict the commission of suicide in order to avoid detection at the hands of officers or to evade trouble, portray the white slave traffic and other things suggestive of an improper relation of the sexes, ought not to be seen by children and we doubt if any permanent good is accomplished when adults witness such scenes. But the motion picture is a factor in shaping the character of the children who see it frequently and those pictures that are hurtful should be placed under the ban.

In this connection we wish to renew our suggestion, recently made in these columns, for a special children's program at the motion picture shows of this city. Boston has tried the plan out with marked success, having a show that puts on children's films exclusively. That scheme would, of course, be too pretentious for Waco, but we believe at least one of the shows of this city could put on a special children's program once a week and make a success of it, provided the films were passed upon in advance by a committee of mothers and recommended by this committee, and provided, further, that the pictures were properly advertised.

It would be unreasonable to suppose that the children would want educational pictures exclusively. They like some excitement, emotion, action and fun, along with their educational films, such as "How the Bees Make Honey," and the like. The movie could be employed in bringing back to popularity some of the well known classics of childhood, while travel and clean comedies are always interesting to the children. In Minneapolis there are five picture shows which give special programs for the school children at stated intervals, while one of the theatres at Dallas, in response to the petition of the Council of Mothers, is putting on a children's program each Saturday morning from 10 to 12, with very satisfactory results. This is an hour when the regular patronage is not heavy and the children's hour does not in any way detract from the regular business of the show. We believe a similar arrangement could be made in Waco.

But we need a board of censors for Waco, as those who read the long petition from the women of the county living outside the city of Waco addressed to the women of the city asking that some provision be made for providing cleaner and more wholesome pictures in Waco will recognize. These women represent among the very best citizenship of the county and their opinions are entitled to consideration. And the board of censors should be empowered to pass not alone upon the motion picture shows, but upon the vaudeville performances, some of which have been far below standard at times, and every other character of theatrical production in the city.

In justice to the shows, it would be needful that the board of censors be made up of broad-minded men and women, representative persons from various walks of life, so that the opinion reached should represent not the opinion of one person, but a composite opinion of the best thought of the city. Such a board would not hurt the legitimate shows and would prove of inestimable benefit to the community.

Comanche county farmers, business men and newspapers are up in arms against the packing houses at Fort Worth because the packing houses have been discriminating against the peanut-fed hogs which Comanche county has been shipping to Fort Worth. We are not an expert on hog raising or the meat industry, but we have an idea that a scientific investigation would reveal the fact that the peanut-fattened hog is as good a product as the grain-fattened hog. At least he would taste as well, and we see no reason why he should not bring the same price. Information is that the Comanche county farmers will switch to the St. Louis markets unless the Fort Worth packers come across.

This paragraph is going the rounds of the weekly press:

"Editors are as a rule, kind-hearted, sympathetic and liberal. An exchange tells of a subscriber who died and left fourteen years' subscription unpaid. The editor appeared as the lid of the coffin was being screwed down and put in a linen duster, a thermometer, a palm leaf fan and a recipe for making ice."

That "All things are fair in love and war" was very generally accepted at the time it was written, but at that time no one had conceived it possible that such affairs as the sinking of the Lusitania would be undertaken, even in the name of war. When we see what evils the war makes of the best of us, we feel more constrained than ever to champion the cause of international peace.

CHILDREN WITHOUT A CHANCE.

The children in America who have no chance, will be the subject of one of the notable gatherings of the San Francisco exposition, when the eleventh annual conference of the National Child Labor Committee is held there the last three days of May. The special topics to be considered are: "Child Labor in the West," "Federal Control of Child Labor," and "A Charter for Childhood." The speakers will include Mrs. Florence Kelley, Dr. Felix Adler, Owen R. Lovejoy and others who have been active in the national movement for several years, together with a group of Californians distinguished for their interest in labor problems and education.

Recent investigations of the committee have shown that in spite of the marked advance in child and school legislation, there are still in this country hundreds of thousands of children who have no chance. In fact, the committee says that there is no state in the Union which completely protects its children, even all of those under 14, from overwork, and insures to them the elements of a good education. All the states except five have recognized the need of a 14-year minimum age limit, but not one applies it consistently and effectively to all the various forms of exploitation to which children are subjected. After ten years of active state campaigns the committee last year drafted a federal bill which was passed in the house of representatives by an overwhelming majority. This bill, which will be re-introduced early in the first session of the new congress, would exclude from interstate commerce the products of the cotton mills and canneries, the tenement workshops and the miscellaneous industries in which thousands of young children under 14 are now employed; the products of the glass factories where boys work on the night shift; and the coal mined by workers less than 16 years old.

The committee, organized primarily as a protest against the exploitation of young children, has been more and more active in constructive efforts for the benefit of the children who have been released from industry. And, at the request of other social workers and children's organizations, it is now taking the lead in an attempt to formulate a charter of childhood which would harmonize and co-ordinate the various phases of the child welfare problem.

PROBLEM OF THE WAR BABIES.

A peculiar social problem is presenting itself in England. It appears that all over that country where large bodies of troops have been quartered there is a prospect of many illegitimate children. It is said that many thousands of young, unmarried girls are soon to become mothers. In one country borough alone the number is put at 2000, according to the Indianapolis Star.

The soldier fathers of these prospective infants are scattered far and wide and many of them have laid down their lives. The argument is now urgently advanced that this problem of unexampled illegitimacy must be met in an enlightened way by the casting aside of theories and prejudices about the encouragement of immorality and looking after the welfare of the mothers and their children. As one writer puts it, it is the duty of the British people in church and state to take up this question, not so much as a matter of humanity as a duty to the nation. "The present wastage of the most vigorous British manhood sets a stamp of exceptional value on the approaching increment of the population," it is said. In other words, the nation needs these children and should see that they are reared properly and with no stigma upon them. The same writer says:

"In the middle of a national life and death struggle, even the most censorious—and especially those pious personages who beg us to forgive the bestiality of our enemies—may surely look upon the frailty of our own men and women with an eye of sympathy and forgiveness undarkened by blame. Let it be frankly acknowledged that the women are no more blameworthy than the men. The strictest justice, then, demands for the women complete and whole-hearted forgiveness, sympathy and assistance. At this great and memorable period of our history let there be no repetition on a large scale of the horrible hypocrisy that idolized Nelson and left the women to starve whom he committed with his dying breath to the nation's keeping."

If this attitude of friendly protection in any general or official way is taken toward these young women it will indeed be a departure and a step in a new social order. But it is a painful situation for a highly respectable and moral people to be obliged to confront.

In view of the fact that next year will be leap year the eligible young women of the city who have not been favored with proposals yet might put in their vacation period taking a census of the eligible bachelors in Waco. And if they should want to "pop the question" during 1915 we see no reason why they should wait.

"Wagon loads after wagon loads of lumber and brick are being bought at our lumber yards now. This is one of the very best signs of prosperity," declares the Hico News-Review.

Cisco announces plans for the organization of a chamber of commerce which will work for a larger and better town.

The Elks are jolly good fellows and will receive the glad hand from everybody during their stay in the city.

Scientists have figured that about 36,000,000 babies are born each year, or at a rate of about seventy a minute.

MOTHERHOOD MEANS BIG RESPONSIBILITY

REV. D. A. MCGUIRE SAYS RAISING MEN AND WOMEN IS A GREAT TASK.

LESSON FROM JESUS' DEATH

Sermon on Mother, Home and Heaven Preached by Clay Street Methodist Pastor.

Many tributes to motherhood were paid yesterday morning by Rev. D. A. McGuire of the Clay street Methodist church. He took as his subject "Mother, Home and Heaven." He started by quoting the following passages of Scripture:

Psalm 133:9: "He maketh the barren woman to keep house, and to be a joyful mother of children." John 19:27: "Then saith he to his disciples, Behold thy mother, and from that hour that disciple took her unto his own home." John 14:2: "In my father's house are many mansions; if it were not so I would have told you so. I go to prepare a place for you." . . . "Mother, home and heaven are three words that tie us on the past, present and future," he said. "Many a home that we go into today we see these three words hanging on the wall. We are not able to understand what mother means. We can only get a faint idea when we stand at the open grave and there put away the one we call mother."

"How could we do without mother? I sympathize with the child that has to go through life and never know what it is to have mother sit by the sick bed and with her soft and gentle hand cool your hot cheeks and sing you to sleep."

"Oh those beautiful, beautiful hands, how they cared for my infant days! They guided my feet into pleasant paths, and smoothed all the rugged ways. My mother's dear hands, her beautiful hands 'which guided me safe o'er life's sands,' I bless God's name for the memory of mother's own beautiful hands."

"Oh those beautiful, beautiful hands, I shall clasp them again once more; As my feet touch the banks of the Heavenly land, We shall meet on that shining shore."

Would Miss Mother.

"Mother, we would miss you in the home, we would miss you in the church. No, there would be no home, there would be no church if you were not there. I am glad that David said, 'He maketh the barren woman to keep house, and to be a joyful mother of children.' O, how that mother heart goes out to the homeless child! If you have no children of your own, find one, learn to be a mother to some child."

"When Jesus was on the cross between Heaven and earth, dying for the sins of the world, He did not forget His mother, and yet He was so burdened for the sins of the whole world that He said, 'He that loveth his mother or father is my brother, and my sister, and my mother.' . . . 'Mothers, we are glad to have you here. This is the day that we come to do you honor. I have a big job to preach the Gospel of Jesus Christ, but God has given you a greater job and that is to make men and women."

"Some one has said, and truly said, that 'The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.' Yes, mother, the destiny of that child may depend on what you think and do. Yes, we come this morning to lay flowers not on your grave, but on you. We want you to feel that we are lonesome without you. If you are not here we feel the loss of it. Yes, I never can forget that the day when my mother would take me by the hand and draw me closer to her and breathe a prayer, 'God bless my boy.' When I married and went out into the world to make a home of my own, and when the Lord called me into this great work, mother said 'Go and my prayers will go with you,' and the very thought of mother praying for me kept me from losing faith. O, God, give us more time to read the Bible and pray with their children."

Going Back Home.

"Home, yes home, 'Sweet home.' How I long to be there again today. The old country home, and drink water out of the old creaking bucket that hangs in the well. Yes, I am going back home in a few days. The old-fashioned log house stands where I was born, more than forty years ago. Father is no longer there. Mother is lonely. It will not be long until it will not be home. What makes it home? The place we call home may have colored windows, pictures on the wall, carpets on the floor, but it is not home without mother and father. It may be in the tent by the road, a cottage on the hill, a mansion on the paved street, but take the children and father and mother away and there is no home. Build your mansion, put all that heart could wish, mother and father there, and still it is no home unless there is love."

"John tells us of a home over yonder. Yes, there are two homes, one here and one yonder, but our home up yonder depends on whether we have a real home here. 'Home, sweet home, my long sought home.'"

"John says, 'Let not your heart be troubled. It is true I am going away.' But he knew that many of us would never have a place to call our own as Abraham, who only had a tent to live in. So many of us worry about the things of this world. Why should we worry? God is our Father and Jesus is our elder brother. If I was a mother I would not tell you so, for the cattle upon a thousand hills are mine, the world and all there is in it. Why should we crave the world? Job says, 'Naked came I into the world, and naked shall I go out.' All men are alike twice in life, when they are born and when they die."

Vision of Heaven.

"Heaven, yes, Jesus says, 'In my father's house are many mansions; if it were not so I would have told you, so I go to prepare a place for you, and if I go and prepare a place for you I am coming again to receive you unto myself.' Jesus has been gone eighteen hundred years preparing that place for you and me. John tells us about that heavenly home."

"And I say a new heaven and a new earth," he said. "For the first heaven and the first earth were passed away. . . . and there is plenty of room there for us all to have a home. Not a hovel; he says it is a mansion in the skies, and then he tells that the city lieth four square and the length is as large as the breadth; and he measured the city with the reed, twelve thousand furlongs. The length and breadth and height of it are equal. So we will not be crowded on an alley nor a narrow street, but on the main street and the very thing that we love so well in this world will be the thing that the streets are paved with. Yes, we will walk the streets that are paved with gold."

DON'T Buy "Orphan" Brands—Buy Standard Products.

It is important that you should always ask for and buy products by manufacturers' or trade mark name.

You'll realize the importance of this advice, because in this way you will protect yourself from imitations and inferior products.

It is generally known that dealers who push the sale of "just as goods" do so to make a few extra pennies at your expense.

You, of course, appreciate that the dealer who never offers you a "just as good" is the best dealer for you to patronize.

If your dealer sells you what you ask for, you can feel pretty safe—rest assured that you are getting value received.

Just a few words about the dealer who gives you what you ask for—you owe it to him to "boost" him and help his business grow.

Your "boosting" will prove to him it pays to have the good will of customers. Your "boosting" does not cost you anything, but it makes him feel mighty good.

Find a dealer who sells you what you ask for—and boost him to the limit.

We again call your attention to the greatest money-making opportunity that has yet been placed before the public. A few dollars invested with this Company can easily make you rich, for our holdings are the best to be had. Our first well will be drilled on The Shelby Tract which joins the "Discovery tract," upon which 9 flowing wells have been brought in. Our Company is large enough to thoroughly develop our holdings which consist of 147 acres. We are absolutely going to drill eight wells, thoroughly testing the field, and if there is oil to be found we will find it. Our holdings only carry 1-8 royalty. When you invest your money with this Company you are investing with men who are responsible business men and are thoroughly posted in the oil business. Our President, Mr. J. B. Cicero, of San Antonio, has had many years of successful experience in Tampico, and other large oil fields. Our Vice-President and General Manager, Mr. F. J. Alderson, of Beaumont, has had 18 years of successful experience in various oil fields; he has invested a large amount of money in this Company, and states that he believes we have the best opportunity in the Thrall field. Many of the leading oil men are watching our proposition with keen interest, on account of recent developments in new wells a few hundred feet distant. Experts have expressed the opinion that we have the best proposition in the Thrall field.

HIPPODROME.

"The Juggernaut."

Ralph Ince proved himself proficient in the art of train wrecking in that excellent melodrama, "413," in which as the fearless switchman he threw an onrushing train completely off the track. For the big scene of "The Juggernaut," showing at the Hippodrome today and tomorrow, he again summons to his command all the characteristics of a highway robber that he possesses, and gloriously succeeds in loosening the nether timbers of a railroad bridge, and consequently precipitates a wild express train into a small lake.

This thrilling spectacle puts a climax on the five reels of melodramatic action, which are in their entirety productive of such great suspense, that the wrecking of the train will leave the audience in a weird state of admiration and silence for a moment, followed by an outburst of appreciative applause. Such was the state of affairs at the Vitagraph theatre, New York, where the picture was first presented, and it bids fair to be the state of affairs in any other house.

The picture is attractive all the time, without disturbing the continuity of action and at the same time causing it to present an even more gripping story.

As a melodrama it is an excellent example of modern motion picture technique. It is not the old variety, slipshod and grossly ridiculous, but so powerful that it is convincing.

The cast is fully competent, the work of the three principals standing out above the others. Anita Stewart, possessed of a large part, plays the two roles of the mother of the heroine, and subsequently the heroine herself, with distinct charm. Earle Williams, the aggressive lawyer, finally district attorney, is very good, while William Dunn is seen as the heavy, railroad president, and father of the girl who is killed in the wreck.

Everything we would say about the story of "The Juggernaut" is so pale and poor and this compared to the tremendous climax of this, the colossus of railway drama—that we shall give only an outline of the plot.

Two young men—one the brilliant son of poor parents, the other the dissolute heir of a great railway king, became friends at college. One thinks he has accidentally killed a drunken rowdy in saving the other's life—they two only know this secret. Both fell in love with the same girl, who marries the rich boy only after his chum has withdrawn from the race because of his poverty.

Years later one becomes president of his father's old railroad, the other a righteous, fearless district attorney. Both again worship the same girl—daughter of the old sweetheart of both—one with a father's deep affection, the other because she is her mother's counterpart.

The district attorney bitterly attacks the railroad in the courts. His former chum threatens to expose him as a murderer.

And now, imagine the girl on a train approaching a bridge which cannot possibly stand its weight. Both men know this. Both are rushing madly by automobile and motor boat to intercept it. You see all this. See the girl's sweet face at the window of the flying train—feel the swaying of the automobile as it skids desperately around sharp turns, and the bounding of the motor boat slashing through rough waters. Both men and the train come crashing into the picture at the same instant—too late!

For a moment that seems an eternity, you feel yourself sitting almost under the tottering trestle as the enormous engine—a mass of whirling steel—leaps thundering and quivering into the empty air and falls shrieking to the swirling river.

The big coaches crumple like cardboard before your eyes and pile themselves up on the wreck, their passengers floundering and struggling in the debris. Again you see the girl—again her father—Again the man—The car of Juggernaut rolls on.

But who are the victims? That it was "The Absentee" under the personal supervision of Albert E. Smith and J. Stuart Blackton, tells the story of its quality.

NICKEL TODAY.

"The Destroyer," three-part Kalem feature with Alice Hollister, Anna Nilsson and Harry Millarde in the leading roles, is recognized as one of the strongest productions in a dance picture since the celebrated "Dance of Death," made by this same company. Picture patrons see in Alice Hollister the same lady that so successfully played the "White Mask," "The Siren's Reign," "The Vampire" and others of the greatest pictures of the past, and certainly will not overlook her latest and best effort.

The story, which tells of how a siren lures a weak-willed son of wealth to destruction, is one you will never forget. Although engaged to Helen, Dick falls a victim to the wiles of Cherie, a dancer. Helen desperately strives to break the woman's influence. For awhile her efforts are successful. Then she and Dick visit a fashionable restaurant. There they meet Cherie. The woman monopolizes Dick and Helen goes home alone. To make sure of her hold upon Dick, Cherie flatters the boy and gives him a sum of money to invest for her. Dick loses this money in an unfortunate speculation.

His father learns of Dick's intimacy with Cherie and orders him to have nothing further to do with the woman. When Dick calls upon Cherie, he finds that his father already has spoken to her. In a bad humor, Cherie turns it, the boy returns to his father's office and steals money from the safe.

Later, when Wentworth learns what Dick has done, he disowns him. Dick hastens to Cherie to seek consolation. He finds Macklyn, a rival for her favor, present. When the woman hears

Dick has been disinherited, she scornfully orders him to leave her apartment. With this evidence of the woman's character, Dick vows never to see her again. He eventually tries to get back into Helen's graces, but the girl's love for him has died. Dick drifts lower down life's ladder. Months later, Cherie and Macklyn alight in front of a fashionable jeweler's. What follows is of intense dramatic interest and must be seen to be appreciated, as such a scene cannot be properly described in words. An added feature will be a Bert Loyette, "Great Americans, Past and Present." This is, of course, the work of Bert Loyette, the famous artist-entertainer, very novel and unique offering, in class by himself.

QUEEN THEATRE.

"Little Sunset" Today and Tomorrow.

The adventures of a small boy as mascot of a baseball team are faithfully portrayed in "Little Sunset," one of Charles E. Van Loan's most famous stories. This has been filmed by Bosworth in connection with the Oliver Morosco Photoplay company for the Paramount program and will be shown today and tomorrow at the Queen theatre.

Gordon Griffith, the well-known boy actor, will appear in the title role and an excellent supporting company has been selected from the Bosworth and Morosco artists. "Little Sunset" is a typical boy in many ways, an ardent fan and he takes the victories and defeats of "his" team very much to heart.

The story has long been a favorite one with readers of Van Loan's writings, and its presentation in moving pictures is exciting much interest wherever the film is shown. The press notices are uniformly flattering.

To Aid Texas Concerns.

Temple, May 9.—The Temple Home Industry club, whose members pledge themselves to give Texas industry and business houses a fair deal, has been launched with a membership of 5500, whereas only 3000 had been anticipated. The organization was completed by two teams of fifteen members each from the Young Men's Business league in a three-days' campaign that ended Saturday night. The Green's, captained by R. I. Tennant, defeated the Golden Rods, captain E. E. Duffield, by over 1700 majority. The winners will have their expenses paid to the state convention of Texas Young Men's Business leagues at Fort Hobart Bosworth in "Little Sunset," Queen Today and Tomorrow.

Worth, May 17th, and will make a determined struggle to bring next year's convention to Temple.

PANTHERS VICTORS IN THE SECOND GAME

Eddie Donalds hit in pinches. Locals knock, but not timely.

TANNER GETS HOME RUN RAP

Eddie Donalds was the chief sufferer in yesterday's affair, but some 800 fans at Katy park were fellows-in-misery while the Fort Worth Panthers hammered out a 6 to 3 win from the locals. The old slump stuff can not be called in as an alibi for yesterday's game, for the bunch hit well and played a good defensive game. Conwell at short made two costly errors, but he looked good, for the second time in the berth, and did not lose the game. Umpire Anderson was rather liberal in his ball and strike decisions to the Panthers, especially to Jakey Atz in the calamitous seventh.

Waco out-hit the visitors and played really good ball, but the hits were not as timely as those of Nance's crew. Four runs in the seventh was too big a batch at a time for the locals to come, although they came through strong in the eighth and put across two. The loss was due mainly to two factors—Fort Worth's aggressive playing and inability to bunch offensive tactics by the Naves. Fentress did the heavy lifting for Fort Worth and that alone usually is enough to count a win for Fort Worth. But Fentress was in hot water on occasions yesterday. It looked for long as if the gentleman with the monkey motion delivery would at last go down before the onslaught of Waco bats. He lacked his usual good control and was hit more freely than customary.

Despite the loss yesterday, Hardy's change in the line-up seems to be a great improvement over the old order. Tanner is an all round man and good with his stick and there is no doubt but that Conwell will round into his new position well.

Waco took the lead in the second and hurried to get through the fifth to get advantage of a threatening rain. James was hit by a pitched ball. Wohleben advanced him with a swinging bunt. Crichlow doubled over second, the ball bounding away from Harper in second. James scored. Grubb dropped an infield fly between short and third. Lee and Stow getting mixed up as to who would take the hit, and neither did it. Went for a hit. Belly bunted out and Donalds grounded out to Hunter at first.

In Fort Worth's fifth they tied it. McChesney hit through short. Atz walked. McMurray sacrificed. A sacrifice fly by Harper to Crichlow scored McChesney. Fentress grounded out to Conwell. Things went along all right until the seventh. Hunter for Fort Worth filed out to Tanner. McChesney lined out just out of the reach of the fans. Atz walked, according to the fans, through the grace of Anderson, the umpire. McMurray singled. Harper doubled. Murray scored. Grubb dropped an infield fly between short and third. Lee and Stow getting mixed up as to who would take the hit, and neither did it. Went for a hit. Belly bunted out and Donalds grounded out to Hunter at first.

In the ninth, after Atz had fanned, McMurray sent one to Conwell which the shortstop booted. Harper hit other to Conwell and the shortstop threw badly to second to force McMurray and the runner was safe on the error. Fentress hit one over second base. Stow sent a Texas leaguer to right field, scoring McMurray. Lee and Melver were out on infield flies. The score:

Room for 50,000,000 More.

"There is room for 50,000,000 more farmers in the southwestern part of the United States, and in the whole of the country twice that number could be employed," said Prof. H. F. Jones, a former instructor in a German university.

The Germans more than the people of any other nation have developed intensive farming. They have realized the possibility of making two blades of grass grow out of one ordinary seed.

Europe of every man who comes from Europe who has given scientific agriculture close study that your people should be wasting the soil.

It is not for me to tell the people of America that their most urgent need is an addition to the agricultural classes. In California, particularly in the southern part of that state, there is room for 25,000,000 farmers to till the black land. There is a tremendous territory of back land in that section, and I presume farther up the coast the same conditions exist. On the Atlantic coast, of course, there is less of this land than on the Pacific.

"The Panama canal will benefit the Pacific coast more than it will any other section. It will stimulate trade with the Orient, and also trade between the Pacific ports, through the canal and Europe. After the war is over in Europe there will be a lingering bitterness among the belligerent nations for many years, and inevitably these countries will seek new outlets for their goods. What more natural than that all should turn to the United States?"—Washington Post.

She Had Already Bitten.

She was a little girl and very polite. It was the first time she had been on a visit alone, and she had been carefully instructed how to behave.

"If they ask you to dine with them," papa had said, "you must say, 'No, thank you. I have already dined.'"

It turned out as papa had anticipated.

"Come along, Marjorie," said her little friend's father, "you must have a bite with us."

"No, thank you," said the little girl with dignity. "I have already bitten."

PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE FINDS MUCH TO DO

BY MISS EDWARDS LOOKING AFTER FAMILY, FATHER HAS CHANCE TO HUNT WORK.

Little Sick Boy Asks Each Night, "Do You Suppose She Will Come Tomorrow?"

Waco is a fortunate city that so few of its people are without the necessities or even comforts of life, but the few cases that are the exception to the rule are all the more noticeable because they are exceptions. A remarkable chapter of human interest is enacted every day in the visits of Miss Laura Edwards, visiting nurse employed through the philanthropy of Waco physicians and women. Miss Edwards came to Waco to fill the position of nurse created by an ordinance passed over the mayor's veto by the old commission. The new commission at its first regular meeting after inauguration repealed the ordinance and abolished the office. Miss Edwards was employed only one month by the city. Her salary is now paid by subscriptions raised through the activities of the advisory board created under the city ordinance, which was composed of representatives of the McLennan County Medical society and the city federations of women's clubs and missionary societies. This board has retained its organization and is carrying on the work.

Miss Edwards goes about among the poor of the city, who are unable to afford medical attendance. Her work lies in teaching preventive measures to stamp out disease.

Miss Edwards' experiences are almost thrilling in their revelation of the humanity that is in all of us, and the gratitude that is given by the poor.

There is in the city a family of father and mother and several small children. The mother and baby have been ill for several months. The father has been out of work, and was almost desperate. There was no one to take care of the sick mother and baby so that the father might seek work in some other place, he having exhausted every effort to find employment here. Miss Edwards' visits came as a godsend. The father said: "As soon as you think it safe for me to leave, I am going to the country, about 18 miles from here, where I can get $1.25 a day. If you will see my wife and baby every day I can feel so much better satisfied to go away."

Miss Edwards visited another home where a widowed mother working in a department store is the only support of an invalid boy, suffering from a malignant disease, and two other children. The nurse's visit once a day does much to alleviate the suffering of the afflicted boy, and to encourage the aged grandmother who stays alone with the little ones day after day.

In another home two little boys, 10 and 12 years old, are the only support of the family, in which the mother and eight-year-old sister are ill. No delicacies for the sick can be thought of in this home—only the most inexpensive necessities. Of Miss Edwards' visits the mother said, calling the little boy's name: "He can scarcely wait for the nurse's visits, and at night asks, 'Mother, do you suppose she will come tomorrow?'"

These are only examples of the many similar cases with which Miss Edwards meets in her work. The board of control is convinced that the work is supremely worth while, and it will continue.

Knights of Pythias Delegates Leave for State Meeting

Dr. J. F. Bailey, representative from the local lodge, Knights of Pythias, will leave tomorrow morning for Fort Worth to attend the forty-second annual convention of the Texas Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias. John T. Bonner and A. H. Gans were among a party of K. of P.'s that left yesterday for Fort Worth, and will attend the meetings of the grand lodge. Pat M. Neff of this city is grand inner guard of the grand lodge and will also attend. Several more Wacoans will probably accompany Dr. Bailey and Mr. Neff when they leave Tuesday morning. The sessions of the grand lodge will cover three days, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Whether the grand lodge is to build permanent headquarters in the state will be decided at the meeting in Fort Worth this week. In case the decision is favorable, a committee will be appointed to consider proposals that may be submitted for locating the home in different cities. If the decision of the grand lodge is to build, Waco will be a strong contender for the location of the home. Committees from the Y. M. B. L. and the Chamber of Commerce are handling the proposition in connection with the local K. P.'s.

and successful entrance is made, the oath of allegiance to the local army must be taken in attempting to overcome all comers.

Wireless from France. Admiral of the Brazos Seley has named J. M. Preves minister plenipotentiary and ambassador extraordinary to represent France in the diplomatic corps of the present engagement. The appointee is also a colonel in the Texas Army of Elks. Colonel Preves has received a wireless that the French contingency will begin an early attack on the city this morning. Colonel Preves received the following in a code message: "Necum borem e satkatchewan," meaning that over 1,000 Elks are expected from the Panhandle division.

Messages in code are being received by the army at local headquarters. Rear Admiral W. B. Knight of the battleship Archives being besieged every minute with advice that a tremendous army will invade the city, to be doubly augmented by the Elks' navy.

All yesterday the members of the local army were being put through intricate drills so as to be thoroughly prepared, and when the great maneuvers are pulled off day by day it is believed the invaders will find this city equal to any occasion.

Instructions to Ladies.

Adjutant General and Chief of Staff S. S. Fleming has issued an order that all the ladies who are to participate in the grand military and naval parade must assemble promptly at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning at the corner of Sixth and Washington. Mounts will be in readiness for them. The horseback division must be in all preparedness for prompt moving. The big parade starts promptly at 10 a. m. Adjutant General Fleming states that over 100 ladies have enrolled for this beautiful feature of the big parade, and, as usual with Waco ladies, he expects one and all to be on hand promptly at 9 o'clock. Nine-hundred-five does not come hand at 9 sure. They must be on hand at 9 sure.

A general invitation is extended every one to witness the grand Elks' naval and military ball as spectators only at the Cotton Palace coliseum tomorrow night, beginning at 9 o'clock. As the spacious Cotton Palace coliseum accommodates several thousand spectators for such events, Admiral of the Brazos Seley expects that there will be a tremendous crowd to witness the grand ball of the Elks.

City Magnificently Decorated.

Perhaps never before in the history of the city for any convention has Waco ever been more magnificently decorated than it is for the present Elks' Army and Navy convention and engagement. Strings of purple and white lights have been placed along the principal thoroughfares, while Elks' colors in the form of flags and bunting are to be seen at every turn. The big parade Tuesday morning will be witnessed by thousands and the decorative features will add a double attraction to the countless number of visitors who will be attracted to the city from nearby points for this great occasion.

Commodore Tom Wolfe, who has worked zealously for the last several weeks in preparing for the invasion, was recently promoted by the naval board in charge of strategic movements on the Brazos. Not only is he admiral of the battleship Floral, but he has supreme charge of the auxiliary cruiser "Oom Pah," which is expected to meet the great naval tug "Blarney," which will cruise up the Brazos this morning, due to reach Waco at 10 a. m. This tug "Blarney" has on board a veritable storehouse of that wonderful ammunition called "soft soap" which the Dallas contingency expects to spread over Waco to capture the next gathering for Dallas.

Through the bravery of Alex Sanger it was ascertained that Fred McJunkin has been secretly laying plans to capture the entire ladies' brigade. Brigadier General Sanger, without thought of his own life, disguised as an Elks

Army and Navy nurse, gained entrance into the Dallas division councils and there overheard important secrets. Hastily returning home, he has gathered a company that will in every way protect the Waco contingency from the designs of the Dallas army.

"Tarson" A. A. Davis, chaplain of the battleship "Uneda," has returned from Houston and vicinity, where he made a daring reconnoitering expedition to ascertain the strength of the battleships Buffalo, Bayou and Mud. The returning navigator reported to Admiral Seley that a vast host of recruits from the south part of Texas would concentrate at Houston to come up the Brazos from Fort Richmond for the present invasion of the Army and Navy of Elks. The reconnoiterer reported that the invaders were due this morning about 9:30.

Temple Elks Coming.

Temple, May 9.—Temple Elks will visit Waco in numbers during the first three days of the present week in attendance upon the annual convention of the Texas State Association to be held there. Intense interest is manifest among the local antlered tribe in the imminent event and a big delegation of uniformed Elks will come to Waco. The regular meeting time was changed from the first Monday of February, May, August and November, to the Tuesday following.

Two things were definitely decided at this meeting, all school houses must fit places for children to be taught in and a uniform system of tuition rates on transfers will be put into effect this fall.

The president of the board was directed to write a letter for publication, setting forth the advantages of comfortable school houses, this to be followed up by a letter from the county superintendent concerning the authority the county board gives him in refusing to approve contracts for teachers to hold school in houses unsuited to the purpose. As soon as the weather and the roads permit, the county board expects to make an inspection trip and look into the conditions of all the country schools as to houses and grounds.

There has been much dissatisfaction over the different amounts charged for tuition where pupils were transferred. Charges for high schools varied from $2.50 to $5.50 a month. It is proposed this coming year to agree on a uniform tuition rate and to not allow whatever charge the district may desire. The person desiring to make a transfer must give notice to the county board. It is suggested, before payments of tuition each month, but full data in regard to the pupil must be given.

Among the items on this printed form are pupil's name, age, what district from, how many days' attendance, and the like. It is planned to systematize everything so that the county board will always know just where it stands in regard to each transferred pupil.
